Subject: CAA to host Airworthiness Seminars - press release

News Release

10 June 2011

CAA TO HOST SUMMER AIRWORTHINESS SEMINARS

The UK Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) is inviting engineers and maintenance heads to a series of airworthiness seminars during the summer. Held at various locations around the country, the events aim to provide all the latest information maintenance organisations need. The CAA said it was keen to ensure that key personnel and decision-makers within the maintenance industry are up to speed on the most recent regulatory developments, and are also given an opportunity to meet industry colleagues and CAA personnel to discuss areas of common interest.

The events will be held at:

- Northampton on 27 July;
- Gatwick on 3 and 10 August;
- and, Aberdeen on 24 August

The agenda for the seminars will cover Part 145 & Part M updates; engagement with EASA and advice on Airworthiness Review Certificates.

There is a £30 per person fee to attend the events which includes lunch.

Notes to Editors:

The CAA is the UK's specialist aviation regulator. Its activities include: making sure that the aviation industry meets the highest technical and operational safety standards; preventing holidaymakers from being stranded abroad or losing money because of tour operator insolvency; planning and regulating all UK airspace; and regulating airports, air traffic services and airlines and providing advice on aviation policy from an economic standpoint.
